Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 23 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sunny spells and scattered showers, locally heavy through Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
During the evening rain, at times heavy and gusty clears the east of the region. Behind, turning clearer with scattered showers. Later in the night showers become more widespread and locally heavy. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:
Through the morning scattered showers spread across the region, locally heavy and thundery, with sunny spells between. Showers continue during the afternoon and into evening with a breezy wind. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Sunny spells and scattered showers on Tuesday, with cloud and perhaps rain over the far southwest. Lengthy sunny spells on Wednesday and Thursday with the chance of a few showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.